My practice is an expression of this human experience. It's also a search to rearrange things visually through paint in an innovative way. As well as a spiritual search, a search for myself and what it means to be human; it's a putting together of the pieces around me and inside me; expressing different thoughts, ideas, emotions, and an escape to my imagination. Art is healing to me and the most meaningful fulfilling thing, I believe that in all its forms, it heals the world and can bring us to greater unity, peace, and self-awareness.
In my paintings, I am interested in capturing aliveness/ life energy, movement, and emotion. I love color, texture, gesture, and creating emotionally charged artworks that expand the imagination or challenge me in some way. I love realism too but find it more important to get the feel of something than the look of it; the spirit of it, rather than the physical appearance. I aim to create interesting, complex, beautiful, otherworldly paintings. My career goal is to be an international exhibiting artist, to be active in the art scene, and challenge the way people think, see, and make them feel. Bring them deeper into themselves and increase their compassion for humanity. A good piece of art; be it music, dance, poetry can bring me to tears, leave me breathless and touches my core. I hope my work can do that for you too.
